

I am writing in response to the federal implementation of FCC 02-278.

1. Under your current FCC proposal you have so many loop holes in it that you could drive a MAC truck through it. That allows telemarketers to still call no matter, in to many places you allow them to do so, even after you tell the telemarketers you don't want to be bothered by them. I want the Indiana current NO CALL Law to still have enforcement against the telemarketers. Should state that state laws take presidents over the FCC proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections.
2. My privacy under Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has improved my quality time at home, to be with my family, improved the quality time during the day and evenings. I still get the calls from out of the country, Canada & the caribbean.
3. I used to receive about 20 to 25 calls per week, now I only receive about 2 or 3 a week now. At least the telemarkets won't call back when I tell them not to bother me again. I am now getting a standard answer from several telemarketers that they are not covered by the law. They are calling from out of state/countr, etc.
4. I blame many of the telemarkets and the telephone company's too. Without the telephone company's be able to change the call-id numbers on the caller id machines. I believe the telephone company's should be penalized for doing so. Example the Deputy Sheriff's Associaation's caller-id is changed to unavailable, with a telephone number should a number that is not recallable(fake number).
